Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29th, 1924.

Case of Robert H. Hensler red November 6th, 1924 - When he was engaged in making a brass coil with one of our pipe machines. The method used this work was to fasten one end of the 3/4" pipe to a 6" by means of a "U" bolt. In order to make the 3/4" pipe tightly around the 6" pipe, the 3/4" pipe was run through piece of 2" pipe which acted as a handle for this purpose. n the coil was wound within 2' of the end, he stopped the chine and removed the 2" pipe. He had machine started again d attempted to hold the end of the 3/4" pipe with his hands h the idea of making another turn on the coil. He held the of the pipe long enough to take up the spring in the coil when it reached the bending point, Hensler was forced to ease his hold on the 3/4" pipe causing the 2' end to reand strike him on the head.
